Hi Carl,

Ted Krieg with ADFG Subsistence Division in Dillingham has been conducting baseline harvest studies (includes more than just fish). Some of the studies funded by the Pebble Partnership and may be more comprehensive than the typical studies conducted by ADFG over the years. I am not aware of any individual tribes in our region that have conducted their own fish consumption studies.

Ted's contact information (he's out of the office this week though):

Ph (direct line): 842-3740

Email: theodore.krieg@alaska.gov

And you probably know Davin Holen, Program Manager for ADFG Subsistence Division (Ph: 907-267-2807 Email: davin.holen@alaska.gov). It's been a while since I checked ADFG's website but my understanding they post their Annual Management Report (AMR) on their website.

Thanks Michelle. I figured I would send a short note that Michelle summed up my efforts quite well and as an introduction to the rest of you. Cheers Carl

Good afternoon;

So, I'm helping a Carl Reese at ADEC find out if there is information on fish consumption by community in rural Alaska. They are looking for this information to help evaluate data being used to help determine water quality standards. As you know, there are subsistence and harvest data studies on file, but many of those are dated.

Do you know if anyone has collected this information on behalf of Tribes in your region? If so, could you share their name and number and I will forward it to the Carl.

If it is helpful, I can call them directly before forwarding, so they understand the work that ADEC is beginning. Personally, I think this shows that ADEC is responding to Tribal concerns. There is no single study that covers Alaska, but there may be smaller, regional studies that will be useful to ADEC as they begin this work. I have cc'd Carl, and hope I have not misstated his efforts.

Thank you,
